Group Training | The Concept

There are two ways of undertaking an Apprenticeship/Traineeship.

1. Direct Indenture: This is where you sign up as an Apprentice/Trainee to one employer and you stay with that employer for the total duration of your Apprenticeship/Traineeship.
2. Group Training: In this instance you are employed by a Group Training Organisation (GTO) for the duration of your Apprenticeship/Traineeship. The GTO will then find you varying employers to gain your practical, on-the-job experience.

The advantage of Group Training is that you will generally have a wider range of experiences and finish your Apprenticeship/ Traineeship with a broader set of skills. Every Apprentice/Trainee is allocated a Field Officer who will help guide you through your apprenticeship and offer pastoral care where necessary.
